On Tuesday next, May 31, the vote will be taken on the Calgary Power Company's proposition to take over the town's electric light and power utility. All ratepayers should make it a point to vote. Whether you are for or against the proposition don't fail to vote.

The Royal Bank of Canada is offering a $1,000 fellowship to the student in a Canadian university who sends in the best essay on one of the following four subjects: "Does Canada need a federal farm loan system?", "Canada's optimum of population and how to attain it", "What the world minimum being desired mean the ideal number of people of the type most satisfactory for the building of the nation"; "The potential development of Canada's trade in one or Canada's foreign policy and its possibilities in the study of the Maritime".

Congratulations are due the Royal Bank not only for its patriotic spirit in inaugurating such a competition among university students, but in particular for this year's contests. "Not one of them but is, or should be, a live issue and not one about which the mass of the people know as much as those in the competition, and general distribution of the best of these essays should be the final step in the contest.

It is only by written and printed word that the bulk of the people are able to inform themselves with regard to matters of particular interest, such as those included in the four subjects above referred to. For that reason, development of habits of serious thinking on such subjects by students in our universities is most welcome. The results of public opinion are found in the ranks of serious thinkers—Calgary. Here, add.

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S QUESTIONS

120. Is the World Growing Healthier?

While ages exceeding the century by more than two or three years are rare, the average duration of life has increased with civilization, due to improved living conditions, the better care of the young and the aged and the advance of medical and surgical science. The average life expectancy of the average American has increased from 40 to 58 years, our span of life being now twice that of the people of India and some of the other backward countries. In the years 1900-1910, four years added to average life, and indications are good that the average will reach the much-quoted "three score and ten" (70).

121. How Can the Average Life Be Prolonged?

Life extension and disease prevention go hand in hand. With the almost complete conquest of communicable and parasitic diseases—smallpox, cholera, fever, typhoid, etc.—and the rapid control of children's communicable diseases, it is time to give more attention to the heavy death toll from those in middle life, due largely to preventable diseases. The most effective safeguard is a routine health examination at least once a year, during which the diseases that prey on middle life before they become so chronic that medical science can do little to help. Those following this practice show a marked decrease in the death rate.

122. Why Do We Have Two Eyes?

When we look at an object a distance, the eye is focused upon it, and each eye necessarily sees it from a slightly different angle, the two angles coming together like the sides of the letter "V". The closer the object, the more the eyes turn inward—the shorter the distance. The eye is termed as "cold" by distance by the different angles of vision under which an object is observed by the two eyes, for the inclination must be greater or less according to the distance of the object from the eye. The eye is "cold" because with one eye shut and attempt to sniff it, we experience more difficulty than expected, because the usual means of determining distance is wanting.

123. What Dog Has the keenest Scent?

Here is an authentic story of how "cold" a trail a bloodhound can follow. A young girl disappeared from a farmhouse. A bloodhound, after being given her handkerchief to smell, twice led the searchers to the edge of a wharf and jumped into the river. The people on board the boat was wrong. On being asked, led to the wharf, and, after a struggle with the dog, was led to a cattalo patch, and then through a patch of woods to an old cabin. The old lady occupant of the cabin, who informed what had happened, then told the girl (her name) that she was here four days ago and brought me a basket of cattalopes. Later the girl's body rose in the river at the exact spot the dog had swum around.

124. How Is the Bloodhound Taught to Follow a Trail?

Every person has a slightly different smell which he carries with everything he touches or wears. The bloodhound is taught to distinguish this smell and to trail it; and that once set upon a trail under no circumstances must he leave it for another. The bloodhound is taught to hunt for animals, or to find lost children. He is not the vicious animal many imagine him to be. His sole interest is following the trail; he shows no desire to attack the person whom he follows. As a pup he is trained to follow a trail; a few days later the party trailed is sent out of sight and the dog trails by scent. When given an object touched by the party trailed, the dog rolls his nose into, or against it many times, sniffing deeply.

125. The Largest Grain Shipping Ports on the Great Lakes?

The three Canadian ports of Fort William and Port Arthur on the north of Lake Superior and the two U. S. ports of Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., on the extreme west. These ports have excellent rail and connecting roads with grain elevators, sections of the U. S. and Canada also immerse elevators, the one at Fort Arthur (the second largest in the world) having a capacity of over 1,000,000 bushels. During 1922-23 these two ports shipped more than 273,000,000 bushels of grain, almost twice as much as Duluth and Superior, the two largest in the U. S.

126. How Are Grain Shipments of the Great Lakes Handled?

The great central grain producing section of Canada and the U. S. ships most of its grain to the large upper lake ports. As the shipping season on the Great Lakes is only during the summer and fall months, the grain is unloaded from the cars into intermediate grain bins and then transferred to boats. The Great Lakes special type of carrier is able to move ten to twelve thousand tons of grain the 1,000 miles between Duluth and Superior for 2¢ per bushel.
